

London College of Hospitality and Tourism

NEW VISION: NEW IDEAS

The University of West London is a leading modern university specialising in the education and development of exceptional creative, business and service professionals. Our vision for the London College of Hospitality and Tourism is to maximise our influence within national and international markets and to deliver high quality, business-minded graduates to be creative leaders for a dynamic and demanding industry.

The University is looking to develop key areas to enhance the portfolio of the College. This development and expansion requires expertise in the areas of Tourism; Aviation and Airline; Hospitality and Event Management and Food Studies.

To successfully deliver our expansion plans for the College we are looking to appoint exceptional individuals. We are keen to speak with candidates who have the drive and commitment to enhance the academic profile of the College at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels. Innovation in the design and delivery of postgraduate programmes and a keen pursuit of excellence in both scholarship and applied research is essential.

If you think you have the ambition and creativity to develop our new vision for the College, we look forward to receiving your application.
